Simply put, Randy Larson knows the game of basketball. Being a basketball coach himself and being the commissioner of the Prime Time League, he has seen many past and present Hawkeyes come and go through his league.

Shortly after Eric May, Zach McCabe, and L.L. Pelling Company/Goodfellow Printing won the 2010 PTL championship on July 27, I got a chance to speak to Larson about how he felt the league turned out this summer, and asked him for his take on the Iowa Hawkeyes, as they now shift their attention towards the 2010-11 season.

Below is audio of my interview with Larson. Enjoy, Hawkeye fans.
