Fans not only of the Iowa Hawkeyes, but of every Big Ten team know of ESPN.com's Big Ten blogger, Adam Rittenberg.

While I was in Chicago earlier this week for the 2010 Big Ten Football Media Days, I asked Rittenberg about doing an interview here on HawkeyeDrive.com, and he agreed to it. We met up on Aug. 3 at the Hyatt Regency McCormick Place, where the event was taking place, right before players and coaches were all made available for print/radio interviews.

I asked Rittenberg about his thoughts on the Hawkeyes, the upcoming Big Ten season, and the future of the conference as a result of the Big Ten expanding to 12 teams next year with the addition of the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Below is audio from the interview, which is slightly over eight minutes long:
