

Iowa/Nebraska game on BTN2GO only

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

Iowa's upcoming game against Nebraska on Feb. 23 will only be carried through BTN2GO, the Big Ten Conference announced Wednesday. This was originally reported by the Cedar Rapids Gazette's Scott Dochterman.

The game, originally scheduled to be played Thursday night at the Devaney Center in Lincoln, Neb., was pushed back two days as a result of Winter Storm Q hitting both the states of Nebraska and Iowa Wednesday and Thursday. Prior to the postponement, it was going to be televised nationally on ESPN2.

According to the Big Ten's release, the Big Ten Network will stream the game live via the Devaney Center's video board when it tips off at 1 p.m. Central on Saturday. No mention was made of announcers, but BTN was unable to get a production truck out to Lincoln on short notice.

Those unable to attend the game Saturday are being encouraged to visit btn2go.com and check if their cable or satellite provider carries the service. It will also still air on the Hawkeye Radio Network with Gary Dolphin and Bobby Hansen on the call.

Be sure to visit HawkeyeDrive.com on Saturday following the Hawkeyes' game against the Cornhuskers for complete coverage.