The Big Ten has not made an official announcement, but single plays have been determined for conference play during the 2013-14 season.

Iowa head coach Fran McCaffery, who was in Chicago for the Big Ten's spring meetings this week, told the Cedar Rapids Gazette's Scott Dochterman on Tuesday the Hawkeyes' single plays would consist of home games against Nebraska and Purdue and road contests at Indiana and Penn State. Last season, Iowa went a combined 4-4 against these four opponents.

From there, other Big Ten schools' single plays began to leak via Twitter – either by teams' beat writers or the teams themselves. Single plays used to span over two seasons so teams played everyone home and road at least once over a two-year span. With Maryland and Rutgers joining the Big Ten in 2014, these single plays are for the 2013-14 season only.
