

1/1/2014: LSU 21, Iowa 14 (Links)

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

Check out all of these links to content posted on Wednesday after Iowa's 21-14 loss in the 2014 Outback Bowl to No. 14 LSU at Raymond James Stadium in Tampa, Fla.:

RECAP: Hawkeye spirits dampened in Tampa

COMMENTARY: Potential for bright future there

VIDEOS:

Fourth quarter touchdown plays

Kirk Ferentz

Jacob Hillyer

Carl Davis

C.J. Beathard

Brandon Scherff

Brett Van Sloten

C.J. Fiedorowicz

Mark Weisman

Jordan Cotton

Jake Rudock

Louis Trinca-Pasat

John Lowdermilk

Kevonte Martin-Manley

Anthony Hitchens

Christian Kirksey

B.J. Lowery

James Morris

Hawkeye spirits dampened in Tampa

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Before facing Iowa in the 2014 Outback Bowl on Wednesday, LSU head coach Les Miles said the most emphasis would be placed in two areas – running the ball and stopping the run.

The Hawkeyes had a hard time matching that physicality displayed by LSU and it proved to be the difference, as the 14th-ranked Tigers defeated Iowa 21-14. This defeat gave the Hawkeyes a final record of 8-5 for the 2013 season.

LSU's emphasis on the ground game was evident from the opening possession. After Iowa won the coin toss and elected to defer to the second half, the Tigers – led Wednesday by true freshman quarterback Anthony Jennings in what was his first career start – relied on the run. Their first 12 plays from scrimmage all came on the ground and they were able to wear out the Hawkeye defense by rushing for 220 yards on 51 carries.

At the center of LSU's offensive success was running back Jeremy Hill, who rushed for 216 of those yards on 28 carries and had two touchdowns en route to being named the game's Most Valuable Player.

"He's a very good back, obviously," Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said. "The first guy that comes to mind for me is [Ohio State's Carlos Hyde]. He's pretty good, too.

"I don't want to pick one over the other, but if you were picking one, you'd be happy to have either one. I could tell you that."

LSU's opening drive consisted of the first eight of those 12 running plays. The first play from scrimmage was a 42-yard scamper by Hill and the Tigers went ahead 7-0 when Jennings scored from three yards out.

From there, the first half turned into a defensive battle as Iowa's defense was able to adjust and get crucial stops. But the offense couldn't muster anything during the first 30 minutes. The Hawkeyes had only 73 yards of total offense in the first half, including just 15 yards rushing on 16 carries.

"We pride ourselves in being physical," junior running back Mark Weisman said. "Today, we didn't get it done."

The backbreaking play in the first half for Iowa came after one of those defensive stops in the second quarter that forced LSU to punt. Junior wide receiver Kevonte Martin-Manley attempted to call fair catch, only to muff the punt and see it recovered by the Tigers at Iowa's 39-yard line. LSU took advantage of the turnover as Hill scored from 14 yards out to extend the Tiger lead to 14-0 at halftime.

"It was poor technique by me," Martin-Manley said. "It was a good punt and I didn't flip my hips well enough and get set. My feet were crossed. That's just something that I have to keep working on and it came at an inopportune time."

The third quarter began with Iowa finally being able to establish a rhythm on offense. After only picking up one third down conversion in the first half, the Hawkeyes' first third-down situations of the second stanza were all converted, with the first two coming on completions from Rudock to sophomore wideout Jacob Hillyer.

However, the Hawkeyes were unable to come away with any points as senior kicker Mike Meyer missed a field goal try from 35 yards out.

The defense would respond off that missed kick as junior strong safety John Lowdermilk intercepted a Jennings pass floated over the middle and proceeded to return it down the sideline for what looked to be a pick-six.

But instant replay showed the ball never cross the goal line when he dropped it thinking he had scored. Because it didn't go out of the end zone and no one jumped on it, Iowa was given 1st-and-Goal at the 1-yard line and Weisman scored from two yards out two plays later to make it 14-7.

Lowdermilk was relieved to see Weisman score, but afterwards expressed disgust for what occurred.

"I don't know what I was doing," Lowdermilk said. "It was real embarrassing and that's not the type of person or player I am. I apologize."

The score remained 14-7 in LSU's favor when Rudock re-injured his sprained knee on his final pass attempt of the third quarter. When the fourth quarter began, redshirt freshman C.J. Beathard had entered and played the rest of the way, much like he did in contests against Wisconsin and Nebraska back in November.

Iowa had its opportunities to tie the game in the fourth quarter but failed to convert on a pair of fourth down plays. The first was, shockingly, a fake punt where the snap went directly to Weisman, who was only able to pick up two of the three yards he needed to move the chains.

“You got a choice there – try to pin them down there again and try to play field position, or we figured we’d take a shot right there,” Ferentz said. “It was just one of those things where if you make it, it’s the right decision and if you don’t, it’s probably the wrong decision.

“We got the look we were looking for, but didn’t convert it.”

The second missed opportunity came in the red zone on the following Hawkeye series. Facing 4th-and-1 from the LSU 19, Beathard threw a pass intended for senior tight end C.J. Fiedorowicz that was intercepted by Tiger safety Craig Loston.

“It was a bootleg pass and their defensive end was coming up the field and I didn’t feel like I could get around him,” Beathard said. “It was fourth down, so I was just trying to give someone a shot. It’s hard to throw across your body like that and it was just picked off.”

It appeared LSU had put the finishing touches on a victory in the final minutes when Hill scored his second touchdown of the game from 37 yards out. But senior wide receiver Jordan Cotton responded on the ensuing kickoff, returning it all the way to the 4-yard line to set up a Beathard touchdown pass to Martin-Manley and cut the Tiger back to one possession at 21-14.

LSU’s Connor Neighbors recovered the ensuing onside kick attempt by Meyer and the Tigers were able to run out the rest of the clock.

“The bottom line is they deserved to win,” Ferentz said. “They made the plays you need to make to get it done and credit to them on that.

“We came up short today, but I’m extremely proud of these guys. It has been a lot of fun to be around them on a daily basis. It has really been a great 13 months.”

COMMENTARY: Potential for bright future there

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – When the final horn sounded on No. 14 LSU’s 21-14 victory over Iowa in the 2014 Outback Bowl on Wednesday, there was a mixture of disappointment and optimism felt by the Hawkeyes as they left Raymond James Stadium.

The disappointment is obvious. Iowa came looking to end its 2013 campaign much like it did its 2008 season, which also featured the Hawkeyes’ most recent Outback Bowl appearance before Wednesday’s loss to LSU. Iowa was simply beat by a better team. Even though the Hawkeyes kept themselves in it the entire way, it was the Tigers’ ability to run the ball and stop the run that made the difference.

It didn’t matter that Iowa had an overwhelming amount of fan support in contrast to LSU. It didn’t matter what the conditions were like or how the officiating was. The Tigers were simply better. That’s it.

But now look ahead to 2014 and it is clear that potential is there for Iowa in the near future.

Should the preseason expectations reach a 2010-like proportion? No, probably not. That was a more talented team returning most of that talent following an Orange Bowl win. But the potential exists for Iowa to at the very least have a similar season in 2014 to what it just experienced.

The biggest question mark will be a group of linebackers losing all three of its starters. But what should help aid that next group is having guys like Louis Trinca-Pasat and Carl Davis remaining in front of them and a secondary that will feature a cornerback in Desmond King who played like a veteran against LSU with six tackles, five of which came unassisted.

Offensively, the biggest loss is C.J. Fiedorowicz, but all of the other tight ends return. The offensive line loses a pair of starters in Brett Van Sloten and Conor Boffeli, but Iowa already knows it will have left tackle Brandon Scherff back for his senior season.

And regardless of whether the starting quarterback remains Jake Rudock or if C.J. Beathard is able to overtake him, whichever one's under center will have plenty of experienced skill players to rely on. The entire backfield returns, as do receivers like Kevonte Martin-Manley, Tevaun Smith and Jacob Hillyer.

That was a noticeable theme to what was being discussed by Ferentz and some of his players following Wednesday's game. They know there's enough in place as far as personnel goes.

Iowa will also benefit from what appears to be (at least on paper) a favorable 2014 schedule that results from the Big Ten realigning its division format. The Hawkeyes won't have to deal with teams like Michigan State, Michigan or Ohio State next season. They also get teams like Northwestern, Wisconsin and Nebraska all visiting Kinnick Stadium.

The pieces are there and the schedule is there. Now the question becomes whether Iowa can seize this opportunity. History would suggest no because seasons like 2006 and 2010 have come under Ferentz's watch.

But 2014 will be its own entity. The players who are returning know what's necessary now following a season where the number of wins doubled from the prior year.

There might not be much Iowa can take away from Wednesday's game specifically because, again, LSU proved to be a better team. But losing to a team like the Tigers shouldn't diminish what the Hawkeyes were able to accomplish.

It also shouldn't diminish what they're capable of going forward.

Iowa-LSU video: James Morris

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa senior linebacker James Morris finished with eight tackles and a team-high two sacks in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.

Iowa-LSU video: B.J. Lowery

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa senior cornerback B.J. Lowery finished with seven tackles in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.

Iowa-LSU video: Christian Kirksey

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa senior linebacker Christian Kirksey finished with seven tackles and also recorded a sack in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.

Iowa-LSU video: Anthony Hitchens

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa senior linebacker Anthony Hitchens recorded a team-high 10 tackles in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.

Iowa - LSU video: Kevonte Martin-Manley

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa junior wide receiver had one catch – a 4-yard touchdown reception – and returned two punts for 21 yards in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.

Iowa - LSU video: John Lowdermilk

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa junior strong safety John Lowdermilk recorded six tackles and also returned an interception back 71 yards in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.

Iowa-LSU video: Louis Trinca-Pasat

By Brendan Stiles

HawkeyeDrive.com

TAMPA, Fla. – Iowa junior defensive tackle Louis Trinca-Pasat recorded four tackles (including one for lost yardage) in the Hawkeyes' 21-14 loss to No. 14 LSU in the 2014 Outback Bowl held Wednesday at Raymond James Stadium.